THE RISING RIVER

AUGUSTA AGAIN ON THE VERGE OF A FRESHET.

The Mills Stop Operations Because of the Height of the Water—The River Begins to Fall.

AUGUSTA, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Augusta has been much alarmed today and tonight by the high river. In spite of the weather bureau's predictions, that the river would not rise above twenty-six feet, it has steadily gone beyond it until, at 11 o'clock to-night it marked thirty-feet and six inches. At midnight it

HAD FALLEN AN INCH, and unless the rains up the country have been heavy, and there is a great deal more water to come down, there will be no freshet. Since the great overflow of last September, when the Savannah river rose to the unprecedented height of thirty-nine feet, one inch, and submerged the city, an ordinary rise of thirty-three or thirty-four feet is not rated as a freshet at all. That remarkable freshet, however, had the unpleasant effect of

AWAKING THE PEOPLE to a realization of what the river can do when it jumps itself, and of making them unduly apprehensive of a repetition of last September's scenes whenever the water comes unusually high. Yesterday's rise reached over thirty-three feet, which is a pretty high river, but the degree of excitement among some people was hardly justified in view of the fact that the high water has often reached this point, and without doing material damage. The upper part of Jones street, above Macaron, Reynolds above Kollock, Broad above the mills, and all that low portion of the city within these limits between Hawks' gully and the Riverside mills, was

SUBMERGED YESTERDAY EVENING. The houses on Cumming street, from the river nearly up to Reynolds, had water in front yards, and on the bottom steps. The houses of the factory operatives, known as Diamond row, in front of the Riverside mills, were surrounded by water, which extended out Kollock street to Jones. In Green street above the bridge, in front of the Enterprise factory, and extending around the low strip of territory along the canal to the street car stables. On Walker street above Berry's yardhouse to Berry's mills, and along Cumming and Kollock streets, toward Green. Out by the Great Mills, in front of the colored grammar school, and extending into the barrel factory yards to

THE DEPTH OF EIGHT INCHES. The water covered all that territory usually covered in the southern portion of the city by a high river. None of the mills were damaged by the rise, but all of them were forced to shut down at least a part of their machinery, and most of them could not run at all. The Augusta factory, the Riverside mills, the Globe factory, Berry's mills, and the Arctic ice factory did not run at all yesterday. The Enterprise factory ran until 11 o'clock yesterday, and the Sibbey mills until 3:30 p. m. The weaving department of the Great Mills ran the weaving department all day long, having to shut down only about one-fourth of its machinery. The water surrounded the operatives' houses near the river, back of the mill, but did not damage a building.

THE ALARM IT OCCASIONED among the inhabitants, who feared a repetition of last fall's experience. The Globe mills, on the second level, carried the river to the river reaches 23 feet, 9 inches, and of course did not run at all yesterday. At 8 o'clock last night, the water lacked only five inches of reaching their ground floor. Many people have been so apprehensive of a repetition of the Kings' mill ground floors, but the indications now point to falling water without a further rise.

THE HEAVY RAINS Which Have Swollen the Waters of the Savannah.

CALHOUN, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—The heavy rains which have fallen in this section since Thursday last have caused the Savannah river to spread considerably over its banks. Already the indications point to the usual spring freshet, as the waters are higher than common. The Oothoolega mills are standing still from back waters. Travel is cut off by way of Oothoolega river bridge, the waters having surrounded the bridge. Should there be no more rain, the river will continue to rise for at least forty-eight hours. As it is, the farmers living along the river have sustained considerable damage, as many of them had turned their lands preparatory to planting corn. Reports from the country show all the streams are considerably swollen, and perhaps some of them will overflow their banks. The numerous bridges of the county

THE WATERS AROUND ROME. Rome, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—There were very heavy thunder showers last night, which accelerated the rise of the river. To-night, however, both rivers are almost at a standstill, and no further apprehensions of a freshet is entertained. The water lacked several feet of reaching Broad street.

DEATH OF JUDGE JACKSON. Who for Forty Years Was Ordinary of Clarke.

ATHENS, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Athens lost one of her oldest and best citizens in the death of Judge John M. Jackson this afternoon at about 5 o'clock.

For several weeks he has been suffering from gastritis, which, added to the general debility of old age, ended in his death today. Judge Jackson was 74 years old, and had lived almost all his life in Athens. From the time when he first entered into his countrymanhood, he served the people of Clarke county with a zeal which has won him his reward in the esteem in which the people held him. Forty years ago, when Clarke county was first formed, he was elected to fill the position of ordinary, and he held that position ever since. The first and last ordinary of Clarke county, there is not one to stand up to his public character. He was universally beloved and respected. Kind and generous, he will be missed by all. He was a devoted member of the First Baptist church of this city. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

JACKSON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. R. C. Manley, wife of R. C. Manley, of J. W. Crum & Co., died yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

ALBANY, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Miss Tida Phillips died this morning. She has been bedridden for over ten years.

VILLA RICA, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Mr. H. L. Snodgrass dropped dead at Pleasant Grove church, two and a half miles west of town. Mr. Snodgrass was at Sunday school, and was stricken with apoplexy, and died in the church.

THE DRAINAGE OF SAVANNAH. Mr. Rudolph Herring, of New York, Dues in Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Mr. Rudolph Herring, of New York, will be in Savannah, he writes, on February 21 and 22. The city council has requested him to visit Savannah and to furnish an opinion upon the proposed house drainage plan. Mr. Herring will probably stay much longer in outlining this important work. He will be paid $50 a day while investigating here the needs of the city, and is willing, he writes, to give his opinion upon submitted drainage plans for the additional sum of $200. His visit to the south includes Atlanta and Montgomery. One question he will be asked to decide is, can the drainage be conducted by hydraulic pressure, or will it be better to rely upon the natural grade of the soil.

AGED ONE HUNDRED AND SEVEN. Kitty House, Who Cooked During the Revolution, Dead.

DECATUR, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—A negro woman died at this place on yesterday at the age of one hundred and seven years. The manner in which she held her own is something remarkable. She has never worn glasses, her eyesight being as good at the time of her death as when a child. She had no childish ways which is usually the case among old people. She worked on her quilts and knitting up to a week before she died. She remembered distinctly many events which happened during the revolutionary war, and always took special delight in relating them. She (Kitty) House outlived all her children, one of whom died at the age of 30.

WILL GO UP TO $75,000.

John W. Adams' Crime Grows in Proportions.

MACON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—There were a large number of farmers in the city trying to find out the status of their cotton at the A. B. Adams & Son's warehouse. Many of the farmers were unable to find a single bale of cotton which they had stored there and on which no money had been drawn, and which were not mortgaged or pledged in any way.

Adams' evidence of the situation a few cases may be cited. Messrs. Harrison and Morton had 17 bales stored in the warehouse, on which they had drawn $500 and when they examined the warehouse today not a bale could be found and no money on the books to their credit.

The Messrs. J. S. and J. T. Bond, of Twiggs county, stored forty-seven bales in the warehouse, and only twenty-one could be found today.

W. T. Morton, of Twiggs, had sixty-one bales, and was fortunate enough to find them safe and intact. It is impossible to tell just yet how much cotton of farmers has been sold and not accounted for. The public apprehensions that John L. Adams' crooked transactions may reach as high as $75,000. The forged papers have accumulated to a fearful amount.

Adams is in a terrible mental state, and has not tasted a mouthful of food since he was put in jail Saturday night. He refuses to eat, though many attempts have been sent him by friends and relatives.

GOVERNOR LOUNSBURY

Defendant in a Large Law Suit for Macon Today.

MACON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Governor Lounsbury, of Connecticut, is in Macon today. He is the owner of the well known Brown house in this city, a property worth about $75,000. He was a warm personal friend and financial backer of the late George C. Brown, proprietor of the Brown house. Governor Lounsbury has allowed the widow of his dead friend to remain proprietress. William H. Felton, Jr., became administrator of the estate of the late George C. Brown, but could find no account on which to administer, as Governor Lounsbury claimed the Brown house as his property. Administrator Felton brings suit for the recovery of George Brown's interest, about twenty-five thousand dollars, in the Brown house property for the benefit of Mrs. Brown, her two minor children, and if recovered the creditors of George C. Brown will also seek to make their claims. Among the creditors are Wood and Bond, who have a claim of about eight hundred dollars on the property now in the hotel, which they say was never paid by George Brown.

Alexander Proulx represents Governor Lounsbury, and Anderson and Bartlett, of New York, represent the plaintiff. The case excites considerable interest. Judge Gastin is presiding.

HEAVY DAMAGE SUIT.

The Collins Brothers Seek to Obtain Twenty Thousand Dollars.

MACON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—While Judge Gastin is holding court in the grand jury room, Judge D. M. Roberts, of East Macon, is presiding in the superior court room in the disorganized case of Judge Gastin, titled W. W. & R. S. Collins vs. the East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia railway. The Collinses sue for twenty thousand dollars damages caused, as they claim, by a large engine run by the East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia railway, which caused the current of the river to change and be thrown on land of the Collins brothers on the east side of the river, doing irreparable injury.

Collins & Hall represent plaintiffs; Bacon & Hutcherson appear for defendants.

JUDGE FREEMAN'S SUIT.

He Will Try and Make the Central Railroad Refund the Money.

MACON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—T. B. Jones is a client of Judge Matt Freeman. He was in the employ of the Central railroad and when on last pay day he went for his wages he found that they had been garnished to satisfy an account that had gone to judgment in an Alabama court.

It is claimed that the obligation was over seven years old, and therefore, under the laws of Alabama, whatever was served on Jones of suit, and the first intimation he had of legal proceedings was when he found his wages under garnishment. Judge Freeman in Macon and by the laws of Alabama the only notice of that suit was made by publication in a local Alabama paper, and he claims that he was not notified of that suit in any other way.

Judge Freeman is confident he can recover the money, and he also desires to make a test case.

BADLY INJURED.

Mr. Edgar Freeman Suffers With a Ruptured Ligament of the Heart.

MACON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—On Saturday night, while practicing on a gymnasium, Mr. Edgar Freeman, son of Mr. Milo S. Freeman, of the Atlanta pool office, ruptured a ligament of the heart, but he was not injured. He was yesterday, when in jumping over a fence at his father's residence in this city, he was attacked with great pain in the heart, and had great difficulty in breathing.

A physician was promptly called, and he found what was the trouble. Mr. Freeman was put under the knife, but he was not injured. He is resting quietly, and he is expected to be well again in a few days.

To the Point.

Macon, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Today Mr. Wiley Henderson, a well known Macon, was tried on a writ of habeas corpus, and found to be of unsound mind and was sent to the lunatic asylum tomorrow.

Messrs. S. S. Dunlap, H. M. Wortham, R. E. Steed, W. R. Hill, N. E. Harris has applied for a charter of incorporation under the name of "The Dunlap Hardware Company," with a capital of fifty thousand dollars, with the privilege of increasing it to one hundred thousand dollars. The company now operates a large retail and wholesale hardware business.

A short time since, Postmaster Hardeman applied to the powers that be at Washington to furnish him an United States flag to put on the new government building. Today a flag 7½ by 12 feet arrived from Washington, and Postmaster Hardeman will have it hoisted. The postoffice will soon be moved to the new building.

The late grand jury recommended that the per diem pay of jurors in the superior court be raised to $2.00 a day, and that the clerk of the court be paid $1.00 a day. The grand jury will receive the same pay. This is a mistake. It only applies to superior court jurors. The clerk of the court is paid $1.00 a day.

Notation has been received from Superintendent B. M. H. that a night clerk was killed and run over by the Georgia Southern and Atlantic road, and mails will be received and delivered at all the stations on the road.

The Georgia Southern and Atlantic road trains have been delayed by a land slide which filled up a cut, making the road impassable. The telegraph wires were cut in several places.

Mr. W. Wilson, a well known young man of Macon, has been appointed assistant engineer of the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad, and left today to report at Tampa.

The amateur entertainers tonight for the benefit of the Macon and Macon railroad trains have been a most enjoyable affair tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lockett arrived in the city this morning from Nashville. Macon is the home of Mr. Lockett. His wife is Miss Pauline Acklin, formerly of Nashville, sister of ex-Congressman Acklin, of New Orleans, and daughter of Mrs. Chestnut, over whose will there was a big law suit in this city. The late Mrs. Lockett is quite wealthy.

A tussle this afternoon between two boys near O'Hara's store, one was badly cut in the wrist and blood freely from a severed artery.

It is possible that the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad will make north to the coast line, the Macon and Augusta road and the coast line.

FIRE AT THE ROCK.

The Narrow Escape of Mr. Moore From

BARNESVILLE, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Mr. W. T. Stephens's store, at the Rock, was burned yesterday at 12:30 a. m. It is presumed that the fire originated from a coal fire popping out of the fire place on the floor. The loss is about $1,800, insurance $1,200.

Mr. Moore, the clerk, was sleeping in the store at the time. He was awakened by the bed clothes burning around him. He barely escaped with his life, and lost all his clothes, besides $20, which he had placed in his trunk for safe keeping.

Burned to Death.

CHIPLEY, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—On the plantation of J. W. Williams, near here, two small negroes were burned to death yesterday, the parents leaving them locked up in the house that was burned.

Thirteen Out of Fifteen.

ALBANY, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Mr. S. B. Wright the other day killed thirteen snipe with fifteen shots at the Boy place in this county.

A YOUNG MAN SHOT DEAD.

The Fatal Result of Handling a Loaded Pistol.

ATHENS, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—A sad accident occurred today about 12 o'clock, in which a pistol caused the death of a young man. Two young men aged about eighteen each, Jim Murray and Knox Fortner, were down at Princeton factory, a few miles from town, and were playing with a loaded pistol. Fortner had the pistol, and was standing near Murray. While fingering with the trigger, the hammer descended and a loud report followed. Murray staggered backward, and fell to the ground. Several people soon appeared upon the scene, but it at once appeared that fatal results must ensue. The pistol was thirty-eight calibre, and the ball had entered the head of the young man just above the right eye, ranging upward into the brain. The body was carried into Fortner's house, near by, and a physician was sent for. Before he arrived, however, death ensued. Fortner expressed deep regret at the occurrence, and bewailed the death of his friend. They were friends, and Murray was visiting him. Murray lives in the city, and when his mother heard of the affair, she went into convulsions. The shooting was purely accidental in its nature.

BURGLARIES IN ATHENS.

Two Stores Entered by Daring Thieves Saturday Night.

ATHENS, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—There have been several burglaries in Athens in the last few days. Saturday night, about midnight, some one entered the large store of McGarity & Hunnicutt and attempted to rob the safe, but they were frightened off before they succeeded in doing more than opening the safe.

The same night Mr. W. H. Fuller's store was broken into, and twenty-five dollars worth of goods taken. The police are on the track of the thieves.

WELL LAID ON.

A Couple of Mormon Elders Learn What It Is to Suffer.

BARNETT, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Two Mormon elders who have been preaching near here were taken out by some of the angered people and given a severe whipping. One got 125 lashes and the other eighty-five.

The Arm Torn Off.

LEXINGTON, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Saturday night last, the thirteen-year-old son of Sam Maxwell, colored, had his right arm caught in the belting of the steam gin and torn completely off. Drs. Paul W. Lingham and Reynolds amputated the arm above the left elbow, and the little fellow is resting quietly now.

Susan Died Suddenly.

ALBANY, Ga., February 18.—[Special.]—Susan Pope, a colored woman, aged 65 years, fell dead near Hardaway the other day. She was living near the farm of J. S. Bell, had complained during the day of not feeling well, and was in the act of throwing some wood over her fence when she fell and exclaimed that she was dying. Before help could reach her she had passed away.

The Hillsdale Rioters.
